

Dr. Abhay Bang

From: "Abhishek Mangaonkar" <abhi7789@gmail.com>
To: <search@satyam.net.in>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2009 8:49 PM
Subject: Thank you..

Dear Sir,

I am a student from Grant Medical College. You had come to our college all the way from Gadchiroli to give us an insight into SEARCH & it's various activities. I want to thank you for coming to our college from so far & giving a lecture that touched not just me but many other young minds.

I am no student secretary who wants to thank you out of any formality, I'm just a student who was sitting somewhere far behind who want to sincerely thank you for giving such a thought-provoking & moving lecture.

Coincidentally I am reading a novel by Muhammad Yunus called " Banker to the Poor". He is the winner of the nobel prize in peace in 2006, who set up the Grameen Bank in Bangladesh to lend tiny sums to the poorest of the poor. Today his system of "micro-credit" has been replicated in over 60 countries & termed by the world bank as the ultimate means to fight poverty. I wanted to give u this information in case you have not read this book, because I wanted to help u in your quest for finding that lost ring in the forest because as u said knowledge is everything.

Thank you once again,

An MBBS student
Grant Medical College